

The Library Examiner

News from Jigsaw Corner

Last week students completed their under-water experience. Allowing for time off during the holidays and Book Fair week, it took 5 weeks to be completed. Students from all year levels took part and were very excited with the end result.

Some of our underwater adventurers discovered more facts by visiting the library's Search Computer and the Non Fiction area.

Reconciliation Week

Be Brave, Make Change

Week 5 saw our school acknowledge this important week. Displays were open in the library showcasing the many resources available to students and staff for borrowing. We have a large collection of books in Junior Fiction, Fiction, and Non Fiction, covering many subjects related to First Nations people.

Jigsaw Corner is sharing the artwork of Indigenous artist Steve Bekue, with a new puzzle titled the Dirawong (the goanna spirit).

Sugarcane Kids - Far North Queensland

Recently Charlie Archbold shared a story with Australians, which took place in a small coastal town in far north Queensland. A group of friends known to some as the Sugarcane Kids were involved in an action packed adventure to prove the innocence of their friend Jacob. Courageous deeds, smart thinking and spectacular teamwork were part of the mystery that took place deep in the territory of the fearsome saltwater crocodile Sebastian. The full story will be available to all in the next couple of weeks...

DON'T JUDGE A BOOK BY IT'S COVER

Did you know that there are a number of books that students just don't like the look of. These books are thought to be old, boring, uninteresting and uncool. This can be a problem for readers as some of these books are actually really good. To give these unwanted books a chance to become as popular as others with nicer, newer covers, we are packaging them up in brown paper bags. Students will not be able to see the cover but will get some lines out of the book to raise their interest. This experiment has in the past created lots of interest among readers. We are hoping that this will bring new life to some forgotten treasures.
